First Experiences in Modern Greece Reported by Former Staff Member

"Open-butcher markets reeking of dead meat-sponge sellers hawking their wares to the rich Americanos at Zanar's in Syntagma Square, where the fountain in the middle of the square shuts off during siesta time,-this land's angry young in tellectuals, not very vocal, but very angry and despairing of Greece's future and wishing that the Acropolis and all other traces of Greece's 'glorious past' would be blown skyhigh as they believe the past is hampering the future,"These are the impressions report ed by Miss Skeie, NUHS English teacher, who is spending a year in Greece teaching English as a foreign language on a Fullbright scholar ship. In order to do this she spent the month of August studying modern and classical Greek and methods of teaching English as a foreign language.

Miss Skeie is presently living in an apartment in Athens near Em bassy Row, twenty minutes from the school where she teaches. The all-girl school is in a suburb of the city. She informs us that there are seventeen teachers other than herhelf, teaching on Fullbright scholarships.
One of Miss Skeie's never-to-be forgotten experiences was the earthquake that shook southern Greece recently, while she was conductin class-for the United State Information Service-cameramen and ob servers all around. Here, in her own words, is the account of what happened. "The confusion was worse than NUHS class break! Just as we were drilling on "Does Mr. Dawson work on Saturday or Sunday? Because of the increased number of students taking German, there are still not enough headphones for each student.
and observers dashed to the doorway before I could open my mouth. Spetsai was experiencing it's first earthquake! It was over in about a minute, but I'm sure my mouth hung open for five. We finally herded the students back in; the show had to go on. One of my friends said that the funniest thing about the whole thing was that I began class by saying, "Now, where were we before that quake?
Before sailing for Greece on the Queen Fredricka Miss Skeie spent a week in Washington, D.C.

Policies Reviewed

In journalism this year, just as last year, the students will learn the purposes of an editorial. If memory serves correctly a few of them areto interpret, to inform, to criticize and to commend. Let's see how, these purposes outline the Graphos' policy this year.

TO INTERPRET

To reveal how the decisions of the student council affect the evergrowing student council affect the evergrowing student population; to see if this stustudent population; to sovernment has an effeet, and to present information so the student may determine whether the effect is good or bad.

TO INFORM

To take the shroud of mystery from around the point system. What bility for improvement?

TO CRITICIZE

If the need arises to be critical of school spirit, student conduct, the school spirit, student conduct, the council, new pories and/or adminthat arouses istrative anger.

TO COMMEND

If any of the above situations meet with the student approval, a few words of commendation may be due. Various people or groups that excel may well receive praise here.
These, then, as well as others, will be the issues the editorial staff take a stand on this year. We believe that the school newspaper shourt a project of the journalism class but should include the entire class but should is that we will wel-school school. Thus it is that we wist well as the faculty-preferably in the form as the faculty-preditor.
We believe that in the coming school year the Graphos staff should keep these purposes of a school newspaper in mind:

1. To publish school news accurately.
2. To encourage and stimulate worthwhile activities.
3. To create and express student opinion.
4. To provide students a place to express their own opinions.
5. To promote better schoolcommunity relations.

After shaking hands with Nelson Rockefeller at a Republican dimner costing $$ 100$ a plate, Mr. Harman very graciously offered to shake hands with his students. P.S. Don't get shook-he didn't pay for it; the county organization did.

From the "big town" of Klossner hails Linda "Dudley" Clobes, cheerleader at NUHS. Linda has a secret interest in Minneapolis and has a special liking for barbecued ribs and "baked goods." She also likes water-skiing, but dislikes Margie Ulrich's ford and "mungers". As of yet, Linda's future is undecided.

One of the shy members of the senior class is Lynn "Felis" Hendricks. Lynn enjoys is Lymn "Felis Hendricks. sects. When asked what her pet peeve was, she replied, "People who keep me waiting." After graduation, Lynn plans to work awhile and then enter Mankato State College or the University of Minnesota.

A part-time worker at Loretto Hospital is none other than Sharon "Shari" Altmann. Sharon is interested in bowling, skating, dancing, and horseback riding. She likes chicken, very much but dislikes "conceited people". Sharon's plans for after graduation are to continue working at Loretto Hospital.

One of the twirlers at NUHS is none other than Selma Jones, one of a pair of twins. Selma lives on a farm near Cambria. She is a member of GAA and likess skating and horseback riding. After graduation, she plans horseback riding. Aiter graduation, she plans on attending Mankato State College. Selma says, "Hello to my brother in Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri."

An active member in our high school band and our pep band is John Beecher. John is especially interested in golf, but also likes tennis, football, and basketball. You know John is enjoying himself if you find him eating pizza and hamburgers while watching a ing pizza and hamow.evision show. One thing he dislikes is "too much homework." John plans on is too much homework. John plans on attending college somewhere in a ninesic after graduation,

Got bats in your belfry, spiders in your gray matter, moths in your hay stack or just viruses in your proboscis? Then call Marie Pengilly for any disinfecting jobs. The fumes from her equipment cleaned out every germ and spider in first hour history. Of course, one question often arises; as Mr . course, one question often arises; as Howell put it, "Who is disinfecting who?"

Here's a candidate for some disinfecting: Mr. Werner. The Big W says that you can learn English if you only know who the pitcher is who is selling stands to the ice cream. Is that what you said, Mr. Werner?

By the way, did you know that Mr. Werner goes around tampering with the guileless minds of little juniors? Why, one Friday he gleefully announced that we were to have only half a day of school the next Monday morning. Then as he watched our little faces brighten with eecstasy, he added slyly, in the afternoon." See what I mean?

A warning to all twisters-this can be a dangerous sport. Just ask a certain maimed junior girl who, despite the wounds twists merrily down the hall on her crutches.

Courtland's contribution to NUHS comes Courtland's contribution to Nork in the form of Tom Diedrick. Tom works

Very active an GAA is Mary Lee Gaut. Mary Lee, as her friends call her, is an honor student who is on both the Eagle and Graphos staff. She is very fond of hamburgers with lots of fried onions and mustard. Mary Lee hopes to be a medical technician some day.

Comming to NUHS from Pennsylvania is Rose Ann (Rosie) Bestlin. Rosie likes to eat lobster teil and go bowling. She is active in GAA and a member of Mr. Werner's German I class. Rosie's pet peeve is "Little kids who call to a person no matter how far away they are."
"Hello to Angelo!" That is a message from Dave Juni, whose interests are football, track, cars, and a certain junior girl. Dave lives on a farm west of New Ulm and likes "just plain chicken." He plans to go to college and probably study mechanics.
'Wild Bill Macklin" was captured in the hall for a few minutes the other day. Bill revealed that he has lived in London, Engand, and Kansas City, Missouri. He likes tennis, bowling, swimming, class plays, and speech. Wild Bill says he has no pet peeves but is really wild about pepperoni pizza.

Edgar Brown says he liked to go skiing until he broke his dad's skiis. However, he still enjoys hunting, fishing, and sketching, along with a few minor interests which he will not reveal. Edgar, a native of Pennsylvania, doesn't like the "People down South who raise cain about the Negroes." Edgar palns to farm, or go to barber school.

Arlene "Kug" Kurkowski has many interests, such as motorcycling, speed boat riding, sewing, and listening to WDGY. Her pet peeve is "conceited people" and "my younger brother." She especially likes pizza and plans on attending secretarial school after graduation.

Active in FFA is "Wilburt Haala. He lives on a farm Southwest of New Ulm. His car is his main interest, although a certain car is his main interest, athough a certain He likes eating ice cream and considers Dave Fischer his pet peeve. After graduation he plans on entering the Navy

A senior with all kinds of interests is Dave Zahn. He is in band, likes basketball, baseball, and golf. However, outside of school, he does "nothing much." Dave's favorite food is spare ribs and banana splits, "but.," he says, "I can't afford them, so I don't get them very often." His pet peeve is "people who call me a monster or a stick."

Snooping AroundNUHS

It seems that not all people get tallersome get smaller. When Pat Knutson measured in Phy. Ed., she learned that she had shrunk 3 h 4 inch since last spring.

We all know that Tarzan has his monkey but did you know that Steve Strate bas bis cat? He calls him Rebel. Are you afraid of something, Steve, that you need your "tiger" to guard you?

Even though we won our game against Sleepy Eye, one of our players seemed about to lose something of importance. Bruce Wiesner will never know how lucky he was to have Mike Ring's belt to hold up that item of importance.

Miss Kayser informed her Journalism class that there are copies of the Graphos dating back to 1917, on file in her room.

Patter

No introduction is necessary. This is a column. It shall appear regularly-if I get copy in on time.
Today is the 25th of September. Copy is due the 26 th of September. It's going to be one of those issues. The reason we write a week and a half before you read it is that the typists work only part time. . .very part time. Therefore, if, during the course of the year, the Graphos makes reference to Homecoming, Thanksgiving, Hanukkah or the like coming, Thanksgiving, Hanukkah or the like when you are beginning to notice signs of spring, bear in mind that the staffi is in school spring, bear in mind that the stafl is in schood to be educated, not to compose Graphi, and that with this in mind, little time at it as possible.
Seriously, this time delay present more of a problem than one might ordinarily suspect. The way I figure it, this is sue will be handed out right around Homecoming. On the front page there is, no doubt, a picture of the Homecoming Queen candidates, sitting on the steps, looking at a Homecoming poster, ogling Mr. Lynott, or engaging in some equally common high school activity. The title to the right of the picture commands an air of mystery and profundity in exquisite phrasing: "Candidates Chosen" or "Homecoming Friday." The editor, who recently gave up warming bench es to assume his position, has, undoubtedly submitted an item of equal wisdom in the left hand corner, entitled "What We Should Consider in Choosing our Queen." (frightening, utterly frightening!) Now how am supposed to write a column? It's September 25th, for pete's sake. All I know about homecoming is that if things go in all homerooms as they did in mine, we'll have more student police than people. I don't even know who the candidates are, let alone whether the whole school goofed up preferential voting again. Why, by the time this issue comes out, whatever I say here will be so out-to-lunch that even I won't want to read it!

There is but one solution. I must separate this column completely from curren events, and touch only upon things of great and lasting wisdom, (such as the fact that "the more the merrier" was first uttered by a cat named Cicero, who lived B.C.) so that even if the paper hits the stands (ha ha) three weeks after copy is due, PATTER is nonetheless, fascinating to all. Quite a job, don't you think? Well, let's get on with it:

Sorties Speak

Ey Linda Brown & Violet Havemeier hundred students had the privilege again of being "jailed." One hundred and ninetythree of these were joyous and cheerful sophomores who were happy on that important date in history (to them, at least!). They were "dropped down to earth."
-Five new sophomores were transferred to our school. They are Linda Haire, Nancy Hagg, Liz Newman, Arlene Voges, and Paul Sprengler.
Liz Newman attended Hutchinson High School before coming to NUHS.

Nancy came from a suburb of Chicago, Illinois. She told us her previous school was much bigger, but the same in every other aspect.
Linda came from Marshall High School.
Arlene previously attended Nicollet High School; but when their district consolidated with New Ulm, she was transferred.
Paul came from DMLC.
We and all other sophomores welcome these girls and know they'll enjoy attending NUHS.
-Mr. Heille is confusing his third-hour geometry class. He's been starting his construction from the wrong points. This information was passed on to me by 2 studious geometry student. Any guesses, anyious

Fairmont Takes New Ulm, 26-7
The Eagles dropped their second game in a row to undefeated Fairmont. Although the Eagles played a considerably good game they could score the Cards Quite often the Eagles would gain good yardage but then falter and lose the ball on downs. Defensively the pattern was similar. Fairmont would be held for two or three downs but manage to break away for first downs. New Ulm pushed their way to a touchdown early in the game to counter an earlier Fairmont score but could not reach the Cards end zone again. The Fairmont squad scored three times after the Eagles' only tally, making the final score 26-7.

Well, class, today we begin our Human Behavior I course. It is so nice to see your happy, smiling faces again this year. lt's a shame couldn't have passed into Human Bebavior II Today we shall study a rather common hu man type: the benchwarmer. First let's classify him

Kingdom-Animal
Phylum-Chordates
Subphylum-Vertebrates
Class-Footballum
Order-Second-stringus
Family-Eagle
Genus-Warmers
Species-Benches
It is well to note that the class of this species varies with the seasons, becomming Basballus in summer, Footballus in fall, Roundballus in winter and it hibernates somewhere near the third green in spring, its normal mating season. Protective coloring.
Protective coloring is usually pur ple and white. Often found in large groups, benchwarmer has been noted be further placed in these divisions: The fidgeter-also called the
The Fiaced in these disions: The Fidgeter-also called the ing up and down the bench with each movement of his friends on th field. Frequently seen picking splinters out of its posterior.
The Cheerleader-Usually can be spotted by its loud squaking and shouting on Friday nights. This is usually followed by one or two days of hoarse whispering.
The Growler-A sub-type, close y related to the species above but grrowwlll, sives it its name.
The Runner-Basically a bench The Runner-Basically a benchning into the fray and back out again once or twice a night. Ofte talks to a super species called a coach Some puthorities do believe this to be a true bench-warmer.
That ends todaýs study. As you leave, be sure you don't wake Dick. Class dismissed.

Music Department Activities Begin As Band, Choir Organize

School is back and things are off to a good start for the senior high band members.

Early Saturday morning, September 29, eighty-five senior high band members of NUHS left New Ulm to attend High School Band Day at the University of Minnesota.

They arri Itime for the 11 o'clock.

At Northru $\ldots \ldots$ ine bancu bers ate their lunches and lined up for the pre-game parade, which started at 12 o'clock.
The ninety-four bands participating were numbered and lined up accordingly. They marched around the field and played their school songs alternately in 30 second intervals.
About 1:15 p.m. the University band performed and played the National Anthem.
Shortly before halftime the twirlers lined up on the field for their performance. The bands stayed seated and played the mass band music under the direction of Dr Ben Criscutto.

After the game, everyone went to their respective buses, and went home.
At the present time, the NUHS band is working on the performances for the Fairmont and Homecoming games.

Attention all aspiring head-shrinkers! William Faulkner, that most professional of amateur literary psychologists, has written a psychological novel to end them all! As I Lay Dying is a treasure house of neuroses and pśychosis sure to delight the heart of every abnormal person.
The incident that is the cause of the events that follow is Addie Bundren's death. Addie wzs the wife of a lazy Southern hillbilly, Anse, and the mother of five children, each one displaying a different form of derangement. Before her death, 4 didie made Anse promise that she pazid be buried at Jefferson among It relatives. It is Anse's stub( 1 ?hzess in keeping the promise

II lees the tamily tivergh the kizarre nine-day funeral procession.
In this story Faulkner extends the technique he uses in The Sound and the Fury-incomplete sentences, italics, vivid images in unconnected phrases, and other devices intended to give the feeling of thoughts passing through the mind. The chapters are headed by the name of the person who happens to be doing the thinking at the time. Faulkner shows us that what happens to an individual is not nearly so important as how it affects him. so importan as how afects him. As 1 Lay Dying is among the books for which whiam Faulkner won the Nobel Prize for literature, and is perhaps the most representative of Faulkner's work, Those who make the effort to read this difficult and somewhat disturbing novel will be rewarded with a better understanding of themselves and of others.

School Nurse Busy

Miss Kittleson, school nurse, was very busy indeed the past summer. During the first half of vacation she went to school in Mankato. Later she spent a few weeks with her parents near Winnipeg, after which she worked at Lake Washington Baptist Bible Camp as Camp Nurse.
