Lack Communication?

There seems to have been a very real breakdown in communication in the Fifth Estate. Such a breakdown occurred around the time a writer attempted to transfer his thoughts to paper, and continued as readers attempted to understand.

Breakdowns in communication are common, and unfortunate. To ignore the possibility of their happening seems either naive or unwise.

In the current world of generation gaps, knowledge gaps and credibility gaps, it seems even worse to coin a new "gap". Yet a recent situation concerning the Graphos and its readers is very close to this problem of communication, or lack of it.

From a lack of communication, misunderstanding and misinterpretations arise. Apparently just such a misunderstanding has led readers to wonder about this newspaper's policy.

Certainly Graphos articles are not intended to enrage the reader. Occasional attempts at humor are presented in what is hoped to be a wholesome light. If satirical or facetious articles are offensive, it is extremely unfortunate for all concerned.

A Misunderstanding?

School newspapers are generally taken very lightly by adults, and as writers and editors for the NUHS paper, The Graphos, we realize that this situation exists. It is for this reason we sometimes take a few added liberties when writing stories for our paper.

A recent article in The Graphos, although meant to be harmless and humorous, was grossly misinterpreted by some adults. This was a feature article written by one of the young writers on our staff.

An explanation seems appropriate. The story's only purpose was humor. It was not meant to degrade, offend or hurt anyone. Some people apparently were offended and hurt by the article, however, and, unfortunately, the misinterpretation was passed on to the local newspaper. Had it been kept private, the situation might have been explained before bad publicity reached other area towns, further complicating the issue. Actually, there really never was any issue.

It is our sincere hope that an understanding will be reached by everyone involved so that no further publicity will come forth on the matter and so that no one else will be hurt by misunderstanding.

The editors and staff of The Graphos apologize to any and all who were offended by the article. - LW

The Generation Gap

Is the misunderstanding caused by the difference in time and age or by the difference in opinions and ideas?

Parents and teenagers often differ or misunderstand each other. This causes a gap in their relationship which is sometimes hard to close. It may be the fault of the parent or it may be because of the teenager. Either way, it should try to be covered. Parents have been brought up in a different environment with many social changes made along the way. Many of these changes that may not sit well with their generation, seem normal to our generation. In any event both sides should compromise or come up with a conclusion that is fair to both parties involved. If this compromise isn't reached, this gap sets in, and separates the two generations. Parents have to understand that the teenagers of today are almost completely different from their version of a teenager. But the teenager has to understand that the parent has been brought up differently and so has different ideas and opinions.

With this understanding, the two generations should be able to come up with a solution to almost any problem.

Nairobi's Warobi

Gerald Warobi Speaks

The first impression I got on my arrival in New Ulm was that of curiosity. New Ulm like almost every other part of the United States is so misinformed about Africa. The books read about Africa are either misleading or out of date. So here I go in black and white trying to hammer in some hard facts about Africa.

Where as I am aware, there are some parts of Africa which are hardly developed, Nairobi, like many cities in American is a cosmopolitan town boasting a population of nearly one million people. Unlike New Ulm which has a population of nearly twelve thousand white American's (less one African). Nairobi has got almost every conceivable nationalities via blacks, whites from every country of the world.

"Did you live near animals and is Africa all jungle?" one of the boys in New Ulm asked me. But before I could answer the questions, some hotter ones were buzzing in my ear like bees out of a hive. "Do you have cows--and if so are they like our cows here?"

"Do you have any cars in Nairobi?"

"Cows will be cows as boys will remain to be boys", I snapped. "My dad has an Opel, 1967 model and a Beman built car Peugeot 404 1968 model. (I hope that answered your question Nancy)

"Nairobi, I continued, is a flourishing city South of the Sahara." I felt they might be ignorant too as to what "Sahara" is so I voluntarily went on to explain what "Sahara" is. It was not their fault that they were so ignorant about Africa, its' environment, plus wrong information. "As far as housing is concerned, New Ulm has got bigger houses on the average. But, there is a good number of bungalows and houses in Nairobi maybe twice the size of your houses--some have as many as 12 rooms and more. Don't forget--there is a big gap between the rich and the poor everywhere--and that is life kids--you can't help it.

In genuinely would love to take some kids from New Ulm to Nairobi (no kidnapping or foul game) to see themselves. Grass doesn't grow downwards in Nairobi. Just go outside a house in New Ulm and see how it grows. Pretend you are in Nairobi and you will be just right.

After taking to so many of my fellow students I feel it's high time that New Ulm practices more student exchange. There is a lot to learn. I guarantee occasional homesickness, but no regret.

Fashion is in ankles.....

By Sharri Mecklenberg

In the past few years, more emphasis has been put on the legs because of the short, short hemlines. Now, the emphasis is on the ankles. The new fashion this fall is ankle bracelets. Everyone is wearing them! The stores in New Ulm haven't gotten them yet, but you won't find a store in Mankato or the Cities that hasn't got them.

There are also different bracelets for different occasions. For instance, if you were going to a football game or someother sports event, or just going out to have fun, you would probably wear a leather strap of some sort tied around your ankle. On the other hand, for school you could wear a leather strap if you were wearing something sporty or else you could wear a chain of some sort. For parties or other dressier occasions, you would wear a dainty chain around your ankle. You can wear ankle bracelets where ever you go!

Oh, here's another little piece of information. Girls if you are going with someone, wear your bracelet on your left ankle. If you're not going with anyone, wear it on your right ankle. So you see, fashion is in ankles.

The Roving Eye

By Jeanne Deinken

Attention all students! If you really want a thrill, go to Room 209 second hour. Watch Dwayne Henke's belt glow in the dark. You'll have to go there soon, though, because rumor has it he's going to start charging admission.

Is there a class in this school that is so quiet, the only sound you can hear is the slight rustle of papers? Unbelievable? But it is true. Mr. Marti really keeps a strong hold on the students in his study halls. His class is about the only one in which you can really concentrate on your homework, but I don't suppose many kids want to do that!

That's all for now, but watch out, the Roving Eye may be watching you.

Scott Hendricks

Students:

Homecoming is finally upon us. Everything so far is leading up to a great Homecoming. Seniors, this is our last Homecoming so speaking as a Senior, let's make it the best ever and one we will never forget and one to be proud of.

We will have a pep fest in the afternoon Friday and when those cheerleaders get out there and lead cheers, I want to hear every student yelling. It's our Homecoming and we want the best. Sophomores, I hope you have carried over your spirit from last year to give NUHS a little boost. Juniors, you are the main core and you have to give 100%. Seniors, let's show NUHS we're still alive and we want the best.

Friday night is our game with Hutchinson. The team is ready for the Tigers but are going to need your support. Go to the game and yell. We want a victory!!

After the game is our dance. We've got a great band and there's no better way to top off our Homecoming. Let's all get out for the game and the dance.

I want to congratulate all our queen candidates. It's too bad only one can reign as queen. Best of luck to all the candidates, and to the future queen a very happy reign as queen of NUHS.

All in all, it's gettin' better, but it's up to each of you. See you at the game!

Heap of the Month The Winner Is

This month's winner is a Nova Super Sport! No, wait, a minute, it's a silver GTX! No, that's not it either.

Who knows what happened to the Heap of the Month winner? Did the fairy godmother really change it back into a tricycle? How cruel!

Ah, comeon! Where is it? And stop telling me it flew away. What do you mean, "... but it's a Falcon?!"

Well, sure enough, it was found. Parked behind the Red Onion, of all places. "The Mechanical Rattle" was up to some good for once, it took Steve Christensen to work. It also takes him to other places he just loves, like school for instance, and especially home.

But what a better place to get one's work done than at Peggy's. At least, Steve must think so, for 'The Mechanical Rattle' is always there.

Fate (. . .) will soon be knocking, though. The great resting grounds in the sky is calling, and soon, if not earlier, the '62 wagon will answer.

But, Steve can be proud as a final reward, he and his heap have received the title Heap of the Month.

Steve Christianson gets along well with girls, or could it be his 'Mechanical Rattle'?

Females!

I like Girls

By Bill Beyer

You know, sometimes I find myself wondering what guys see in girls. Is it their looks, their body, their hair, their abilities, or maybe something else? But I'll tell you what I think makes guys look at girls and also why guys like them. Well, first of all it depends on the girl. If she's got nice legs, you look at her legs. If she's cut or just has a different kind of face, you look at her face, and it goes on like that.

Ban All---

By Allen Alvig

The time of crossing your heart is past. The days of harnessing up every morning are gone. It's time for the world to see you as you really are. Forget about the snaps and straps. Lift and separate no longer. Feel free. Comfort is essential, isn't it? Then why bind yourself up every morning. Break free of your bonds! Release yourself and forget about strapping up every day! BAN ALL SUSPENDERS!

What Is A Girl?

By Dick Schwab

She is many things. She is: a student a friend a cheerleader who maintains pep throughout the game a talented actress and musician one of the library assistants a debater full of corny logic and picky questions a creative writer who hands in twelve assignments when only four are due one of Miss Mueller's girls a date to take to a movie or a football game a coatmaker who makes a coat out of material she is allergic to just because it looks nice a goalkeeper in GAA the cause of many discussions, many of which are heated someone to go steady with a homecoming queen a devoted solicitor for the year-book a carhop at one of the local drive-ins an admirer of Mr. Schmidt a Miss New Ulm candidate a member of the Better Half a Hanska chicken farmer and proud of it a great auto mechanic a confused Math Analysis student. She is a little bit of everything, not much of anything, but something New Ulm can be proud of.

There is one thing I cannot stand and I'm sure most other guys can't either, and that's when a girl has weiner legs--which are legs that are shaped like weiners. I think that is the ugliest thing on a girl. Then there are those guys that are hung up on blondes. Really I don't think it matters what color a girl's hair is. Now, I know there are some awfully nice blondes around, but I can show you just as nice girls that are without blonde hair. I find that guys are attracted right away to girls that are pretty, but in the long run he won't like her anymore because her face won't be pretty to him anymore, because he is soused to it. I find that a girl with not such a pretty face and not a beautiful body really the nicest, but a beautiful body helps.

Please excuse me if the things I just got done saying don't make sense because I have trouble expressing myself.

Beware!

By Bartholamue Buttercup
Looking at all the bow wows on the front page of the Journal lately, I see that New Ulm should hire another fleet of dogcatchers.

Well once again it's the time of year for all the girls who usually don't see you to say hello. Beware Sophomores of the goddesses baring "false" gifts. Beware Juniors of false promises. And Seniors beware of dog bites.

Girls come in all sizes. Trouble is, N.U.H.S. has received an overload of odd sizes. I wonder if we could send any back.

Fellas beware the "Ideas of Girls." Don't believe that old adage, "Boys are the aggressors." No sooner is a guy taking a girl home, than she sidetracks him. Just smile at a girl, (pardon the expression) and you're "married" for the rest of the year. I can hear them crack the whip already.

Yes, girls at football games make D.J. head for the sidelines, and girls head for him. "Girl" is a four letter word meaning trouble. They can be happy one minute, sad the next. Temper is their reason for doing things, and tears justify what they have done.

Homecoming's on its way, and Queens we must choose. So guys ya better all look out cause they ain't gonna loose.

Girls!

By Dave Romberg

Ah yes, they're a member of the feminine society aren't they? Humanitarians say they mature faster than the men. Is huddling in covers and gossiping about what Mary and Joe did the night before Mature?

I don't really hate them. But at times it gets pretty close.

Without the women in this world, I really think that this world would be back in the primitive age. All inspiration causes, form the women of our age.

Where would King Kong be without Godzilla? Remember their lovers quarrel?

Where would ? be without Tiny Tim? Where would Mr. Trapp be without Louise Gup?

Female Of The Species

By Mark Graham

When a boy is four, and to him school hasn't come yet "A" girl is a playmate who is no different than he is. They sit in their sandbox, building imaginary castles, that soon tumble down.

When a boy is seven, and now a big man, a girl is someone who is afraid of worms and of getting dirty.

When a boy is ten, he says he hates girls because they're dumb. But deep inside, there's one girl.

When he is thirteen, there is more than one girl, another who's more important than the first. But she fails to notice his futile attempts to attract her attention.

When this young man is fourteen, she notices him, it's his first date, a tortuous affair to even ask her.

Fifteen, sixteen, seventeen roll up before anyone notices. There has been several girls. But his ring has left his hand, a new one has taken the vacancy. He has a car, now they can go anywhere they want to as long as they're together.

Eighteen and up brings along a cold draft, and he must go. The girl whose ring he had worn still holds a special place in his heart.

At twenty-two he marries, but none of those whom he had known. He finally knows that, as the popular song states, this girl is a woman now.

A New Breed

By Pat Groebner

A new breed of men has evolved in New Ulm Senior High School. Men have come to believe that computers are better than girls! Why, you may ask? To answer this, I dug deep into my reasoning cerebrum for the answers.

#1 Did you ever try to debug a girl? A computer program is easy. Within days it's putty in your hands, but a girl - IMPOSSIBLE!

#2 Computers hardly ever talk back. Computers are ever so kind and gentle and docile if you treat them right. But no matter how you treat a girl, she'll come after you and dismember you limb from limb.

#3 Computers are less expensive than girls. You take a girl out on the town for a night and what happens? Your wallet has shrunk 5 inches in width and you're no better off after you started. (Matter of fact you had more money.) Now to contrast this dilemma with something at all (you, that is) The best things in life are free!

The above reasons are not all possible ones - not by a long way. Some twenty sophomores, juniors, and seniors have seen the light. Computers are the heatbeat, and throb of the future.

Computers are more constructive.

VICTORY through Computers!

HONEYWELL HAS A BETTER IDEA!!!!!!

A Shy Guy's Point of View

By Rich Schwartz

How do you compliment a girl? Well, I can tell you it isn't easy. For example, if you're dancing with Lance's date, how do you tell her you want to talk with her? You could whisper, "Come down here, I want to talk to you." This could however result in a dealing with Lance. Maybe that would be better for you.

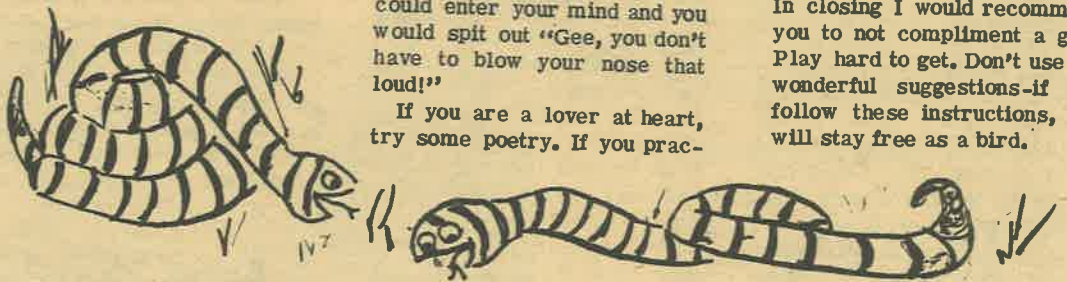

For some people it's easier to compliment a girl when she is alone. Can you picture it? The two of your are watching a spy thriller. Suddenly your chance comes-a commercial! You look into her eyes but the commercial blares as someone demonstrates his blow proof kleenex. Subconsciously this could enter your mind and you would spit out "Gee, you don't have to blow your nose that loud!"

If you are a lover at heart, try some poetry. If you practice it and learn the new way to write it, you could knock a girl off her feet. I remember one you could use if you're in a jam. It goes:

I can never forget you, From Saturday morning cartoons till The Munsters, you are stuck in my mind. Your wonderful painted eyes, Enable me to see you in the dark. Your long nose is so beautiful it reminds me of Niagra Falls every time I hear it. Your ears remind me of that eventful taxi ride we took when the doors flew open. I cannot go on pouring my heart out for you so I close with this thought;

You can add your own closing. You can also really pour on the "juice" with your own poems. In closing I would recommend you to not compliment a girl. Play hard to get. Don't use my wonderful suggestions-if you follow these instructions, you will stay free as a bird.

The seven homecoming candidates are: Nancy Asleson, Mary Braunreiter, Rhonda Goltz, Debbie Kral, Brenda Krambeer, Bonnie O'Brien, and Jacki Pollei.

Rehearsals Begin For Fall Play Cast

By Virjean Luepke

"Inherit the Wind," the fall play, is scheduled for November 7 and 8 in the Junior High Auditorium, according to Mrs. Ackerson, director of the production.

The play has been produced as a movie, and is a partially factual story.

The real time of this play was 1925, and the scene was a courtroom in a small town in Tennessee. A man was being put on trial for teaching his students in school Darwin's theory of evolution. This trial has become known as the Scopes Monkey Trial because of the idea that people evolved from monkeys. Two very famous attorneys presented their cases at this trial—Clarence Darrow was the defense lawyer, and William Jennings Bryant was the prosecuting attorney. These names, along with all the rest in the play, have been changed. The first letter in the names of the lawyers are the same as they were in the trial.

Steve Peterson Leads the Pack

By Gene Dickey

Out leading the pack of long-winded harriers is Steve Peterson, a dedicated three-sport letterman. As co-captain of the hard-working distance runners, Steve has managed to run in nine meets despite a week and a half lay-off caused by a leg injury. Two ligaments in his leg began to rub together as a result of overstraining his leg. During the time that Steve couldn't run, the one point loss to Blue Earth was a defeathard to take.

But talking of successes is much more pleasant and Steve's includes third place in the South Central Conference meet just a week after recovering from his injury. Attitude plays an important part in any sport and in spite of the fact that Steve didn't have time to train extensively this summer because of a job, Steve still came out on top this year through his drive in training early this school year.

Coach Peterson, Steve informed us, works the harriers hard but is a terrific coach and even runs along with the team in practice to "encourage" some of the slower members.

Besides his injury, Steve has had his most trying time attempting to explain the lay-out of the New Ulm course to a team that was less than bright. Seriously, though, a three-mile cross-country course is fairly complicated to follow and a mistake could be disastrous, but the Eagles had a good laugh after the Glencoe meet, when, Steve said, the course was explained in terms of "around a certain park bench, between two specific trees," and so on.

If Steve can stay healthy for the rest of the year, look for him to be leading the pack as they come around the home stretch at District Ten time.

Gridders Ready for Homecoming

By LARRY WALSTON
 Editor-in-Chief

"We've improved a little each game, and I think the players will really be up for this one," commented New Ulm Senior High School football coach Don Varpness, when questioned about the homecoming game against the Hutchinson Tigers.

According to Coach Varpness, "more weight lifting by more players has really helped the team." He added, "Last year we had some guys that were weak, but this year everyone is in shape and stronger as a result of weight lifting."

The biggest improvement by the team this season has been in the offensive line, reports the coach. Here again, he felt that the weight lifting has helped these boys.

Coach Varpness said Hutchinson, which presently stands a second behind Fairmont in the South Central Conference standings, has several, big tackles and a good quarterback in Bill Tapper, plus several good running backs.

Band Plans Homecoming Show

By Valerie Brandel

The New Ulm Senior High School Band has made up their Homecoming performance themselves.

The performance will be centered on welcoming the alumni. Formations will be done by the band spelling out "Grad." Originally it was to be "Hi! Grads," but it would take too long and become complicated.

New Ulm itself will be honored by the band when it forms a "floating" NU. By "floating" it means it will move across the field.

When asked what music would be played Mr. Iverson came up with this statement: "It will be songs such as Auld Lang Syne because of the returning alumni.

All in all it should be a good performance and a good game. We hope you will all be there to cheer our team on to victory and to give the band some of that "thunderous applause" Mr. Iverson is always talking about.

The Eagles' strong point, he commented, has been the offensive blocking, while the defense may be weak in some places because of inexperience, but it seems to be coming along after several position changes.

The starting offensive lineup for the Eagles will probably be Scott Hendricks at quarterback, Scott Backer and Doug Collins or John Rolloff at halfbacks, Steve Martinka at fullback, Bill Reitter, Dave Fleury or Greg Kraus at guards, Alan Tauer or Terry Madsen at center, Rae Runck and Fritz Burnett at tackles, and Steve Burns and George Eichinger at ends.

On defense it will probably be Jim Haller or Reitter at middle guard, Burnett and Rich Johnson or Fred Beck at tackles, Mike Schugel and Collins or Martinka at ends, Jay Fler, Reitter, Martinka, Madsen or Tauer at linebackers, Don Johnson, John Rolloff, Mark Fjelstad or Dave Mossberg at cornerbacks, with Eichinger, Backer, Burns or Dale Mossberg at the safety spot.

Coach Varpness said he felt that Hutchinson was weakest against the pass, but he would rather try to develop a running and ball control game first, if possible.

Everyone is fairly healthy, since the weight-lifting cut down on overall injuries, said the coach.

Okay, Eagles, go make them "Tigers today, kittens tomorrow!"

Stargazers Meet

The astronomy class meets two nights a week and several hours a night. Half of the time is spent inside and half outside.

The purpose of this class is to determine where we are in the galaxy, where the earth is moving, and what makes the motion of the other objects in the universe. The students also study main constellations, which act as road maps for finding other objects and double variable stars in other galaxies.

During the next two weeks the class is going to study the phases of the moon and look at Saturn and Jupiter.

Meet the New Students...

MARK WITTE

Contributor of Mrs. Green's 1970 Pontiac poster is a new junior, Mark Witte. Mark hails from Duluth, Lincoln, Nebraska, and most recently Rochester, Minnesota. He went to John Marshall High School, which, he informed me, has had pretty good basketball teams. Mark likes water sports--swimming, canoeing, scuba diving and jazz.

He's had a year of Russian too so, gp'abcmyume, Mark.

LINDA WEIER

One of the many new students at NUHS is Linda Weier. Linda is a junior and is a transfer from Cathedral.

Linda mentioned that the first day of school was quite hectic but with the help of the friendly kids and teachers she soon found her way.

Her exact words about the new dress code was "I like it! It's really different from Cathedral."

Linda looks forward to her next two years at NUHS.
